

QUICK FACTS

Attendance

Carnegie Museums reaches nearly 1.4 million people a year through onsite visits, educational outreach, and special events.

Outreach

We help teach more than 360,000 children a year through onsite and offsite education programs, making Carnegie Museums the largest provider of K-12 educational programming outside the public school system.

Members & Donors

More than 110,000 people call themselves Carnegie Museums Members from more than 29,000 member households. On average, more than 2,000 individuals and organizations support the Carnegie Museums Annual Fund each year.

Programming

We bring more than 60 special exhibitions, films, and theater shows to Pittsburgh each year. We also offer more than 800 camps and classes for children and adults. The Andy Warhol Museum's traveling exhibitions have been seen by 6 million-plus people across the globe. Carnegie Science Center's Buhl Planetarium-produced shows have been distributed to more than 400 planetariums worldwide, and translated into 18 languages.

Community

Carnegie Museums employs more than 1,200 people and directs more than $26 million to the region's economy in salary and benefits.

Volunteers

Each year, about 1,000 volunteers donate more than 10,000 hours of service to Carnegie Museums.

Theaters

Programs, lectures and films are presented at our museums in six theaters and lecture halls.

Buildings

Carnegie Museums maintains 40 buildings (1.319 million square feet) in the Pittsburgh region, including four museums, research and storage facilities, and Powdermill Nature Reserve in Ligonier, Pennsylvania.
